CLIMATE POLICY CHOICES: PAYOFFS AND TRADE-OFFS

Florence Reed

Founder, Sustainable Harvest International and Partner of Regeneration International

Florence Reed is a prize-winning thought leader, innovative practitioner, and deeply engaging speaker who believes that when people work together, things can change for the better. This belief led her to serve as a Peace Corps Volunteer in Panama in the early nineties. In 1997, Reed founded Sustainable Harvest International, a nonprofit organization dedicated to working with rural Central American communities to implement sustainable farming practices and preserve tropical forests. As the organization's chief visionary and networker, Florence spends her time in rich conversations with internal and external stakeholders, bringing together farmers, donors, volunteers and others to catalyze changes for a better future.

Her entrepreneurial spirit and interest in expanding horizons makes identifying new opportunities for collaboration a favorite part of Florence's work. In recent years she has enjoyed being a delegate to the Opportunity Collaboration, Regeneration International General Assembly and Environmental Laureates Convention, as well as a member of advisory committees for the National Peace Corps Association and Regeneration International. Florence is currently especially interested in helping expand global coalitions such as Regeneration International for a truly sustainable future. Florence lives in Surry, ME with her husband, Bruce Maanum, and their son, Clay, in a home they built with primarily local materials. They are close to reaching their goal of being fossil fuel independent and grow much of their own food.
